COUNCIL POSTPONED
ACTION ON LIGHTS

ORNAMENTAL STREET LIGHTING PROPOSITION LAID OVER BY COUNCIL TO RECEIVE PROPOSAL FROM GAS COMPANY.

PALMISTRY ORDINANCE

Ordinance Prohibiting Practice of Palmistry, Clairvoyance and Similar Arts, Introduced Last Night, and Public Hearing Will Be Held Tonight.

Action on the matter of ornamental street lights for the business portion of the city by the common council was postponed for two weeks to allow the New Gas Light Company to submit a proposition for the lights, after the question had been discussed at some length in the meeting of the common council last evening.

The subject was brought up by Alderman Joseph Donahue in the introduction of an order to accept the proposal of the Janesville Electric Company to furnish the lights on Main and Milwaukee streets, in the downtown district and on block on North High and North Academy streets and to instruct the mayor to city clerk to sign the contract for a period of from one to ten years, at the option of the city.

Motion By Hall. Immediately after the order was introduced, Alderman Hall arose and moved to lay the matter over for two weeks, and Alderman Evans seconded it, stating that the New Gas Light Company is working on a proposition, which they could be able to submit, and that before a contract was let they should be given a fair chance to compete with the electric company.

The members of the special lighting committee of the industrial and Commercial club, President A. P. Lovejoy, Secretary E. E. Kane and several of the members of the club were present at the meeting and were invited by the mayor to speak on the subject. Alderman Evans was the first to speak. He stated that in his belief the proposal submitted by the electric company was a most advantageous and the price was right. He stated that while it is not desired to bar any company's proposition of the electric company, the more practical and electric lights were more desired by the taxpayers and tenants on the streets who are the ones on whom the burden of payment falls.

Taxpayers Want Lights. H. L. Melman was called on and stated that the heaviest taxpayers had been burdened and desired the ornamental lights on the main streets of the community. He recommended that North High and Academy streets be left over, as lights could be placed on at any time should they be desired.

Figure relative to the proposal submitted to the industrial and Commercial club by the electric company was explained by Pres. A. P. Lovejoy. He stated that in the long run the proposal of the electric company, secured with that submitted to them by the gas company, would prove a cheaper, as the city would purchase the electric company, while in the gas company's proposal the cost of installation was included in each year of maintenance.

Matters Freely Discussed. During Mr. Lovejoy's talk the discussion became general among the aldermen and the members of the club. In the opinion of the industrial club men, the gas light would be harder to dispose of than the electric lights. It was stated that the old gas lights would be maintained in case the gas company was accepted.

Alderman Dull speaking regarding the lighting proposition stated that as he was in favor of the lights, he moved an order should be passed to have the wires and poles now standing in the proposed lighting district and the electric wires be placed underground. It is quite possible that if the industrial club are selected, such an order will pass the council, as it is the wish of the members in favor of this.

Motion Is Carried. The vote on Alderman Hall's motion to lay the matter over for two weeks was carried by 6 to 3. The vote was as follows: Ayes—Aldermen Buchholz, Evans, Hall, Sheridan, Shurtliff and Spohn; Nays—Aldermen Donahue, Dull and Connell.

Reference to the lighting matter with the recommendation that the council take some action on it was made in a speech by Mayor Nichols. Other recommendations on matters which the city's chief executive directed looked after were made in the talk. The speech was as follows:

I wish to call your attention to, and urge your serious consideration of the executing of a contract providing for the better lighting of the city and the installation of an ornamental street lighting system on Main, Milwaukee and North Academy streets. Since the last regular meeting of this council, at which time an order failed to pass directing the execution of a contract of this kind, I have interviewed the members of the Commercial Club, business men and merchants, as well as the representatives of the lighting companies, who had this matter in charge, and I am satisfied that a contract can be made for a period of one year with privilege of ten years with the company that furnishes these lights, and that all posts, ornamental street lights, and the ornamental street lighting system, as soon as installed, be and become the property of the city of Janesville. I understand and assume that you are also of the same opinion, that these ornamental street lights, together with the system, will be furnished by the abutting property owners or merchants. This contract, in my judgment, merits your serious consideration as I feel confident that these additional lights will benefit our merchants on these streets as well as our citizens generally. Also that you install additional lights in any places

In the yards where the same are necessary.

I also recommend the passing of an ordinance prohibiting people from allowing their chickens to run at large. I do this on complaints made to me by our citizens of the destruction of their flower beds, gardens, etc., by chickens whose owners fail to keep them properly confined.

Also an ordinance providing that where streets are being repaired that divides two wards, one side in one ward shall not be repaired unless the side in the other ward is repaired at the same time, so that work can be done as one complete job, thereby making a better and more satisfactory piece of work. I realize that an ordinance of this kind, unless submitted to a vote of the people, is not absolutely binding on this council. For this reason I trust you will see to it that this ordinance, together with any others of this character that you may deem necessary, be submitted to a vote at the next municipal election. By Chapter 476, laws of 1911, we are thus authorized to amend our special city charter.

Sometime ago the Chief of the Fire Department requested me to sign a complaint against the Rock County Telephone Company for their wires strung in violation of ordinance No. 284. I referred this matter to the street lighting committee with the request that they take the matter up and investigate the same, recommending to me the proper course to pursue. As yet I have received no such recommendation. The Chief of the Fire Department persists that all the companies that are violating this ordinance should be prosecuted. Sometime ago the attorney for one of the companies proposed an amendment to this council with which nothing has been done as yet, and I therefore would request that you pass an order directing the signing of these complaints against these companies that are violating this ordinance, or else repeal the ordinance.

I also made a personal inspection of the banks of Rock River and the sanitary conditions. I found the same far worse than I had any idea could possibly exist. Official notices are in the hands of the printers and I expect will be served in the morning. If these are not heeded, the offender will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

The "chicken and duck" ordinance, which the mayor asked to have passed was brought up, but was killed when the third reading, under a suspension of the rules, was called for by Alderman Shurtliff, who introduced the ordinance. The ordinance was to prohibit chickens, ducks and geese from running at large within the city limits. The penalty of from one to twenty-five dollars being provided by the ordinance. The motion to give it the third reading was lost by a vote of eight to one, Alderman Schindler being absent from the session last evening on account of illness.

Palmistry Ordinance. Another attack on the palmistry, clairvoyance, psychics and others who claim to foretell the future, was made in the council last evening in the form of an ordinance introduced by Alderman Dull. The ordinance, which was given its first and second readings, prohibits the practice of palmistry, clairvoyance, psychic revelations, necromancy, forecasting the future through the celestial bodies or other forms of practice pretended to reveal the future. The penalty provided by the ordinance is imprisonment for ninety days or a fine of from $50 to $200 or both, if in the judgment of the court the offense merits such punishment.

Public Hearing. Immediately after the ordinance had been given its first and second readings, Mayor Nichols announced that he had set a public hearing for discussion of the question for this evening at eight o'clock in the assembly room at the city hall, when those practicing these arts would be given an opportunity to speak for themselves.

Street Improvements. The report of the street assessment committee on North Jackson street, including an order that repairs be made, was presented at last evening's session, and the order for repairs passed. The committee recommended that an extended repair be made necessary owing to a delay in repairing the street before, the cost be taken from the Ward fund, and this was included in the order. The street from Wall street to the railway tracks is to be repaved, the city engineer recommending this as the travel on the street has caused depressions in the surface of the highway.

The street commissioner was ordered to remove the accumulation of sand in front of the overflow from the by-pass of the inverted siphon of the sewer at Racine street the work to be done under the direction of the city engineer.

Plans and specification for gas and water service pipes on North Academy street from Milwaukee street to the tracks and on North Main street from Milwaukee street to Fourth Avenue, were accepted and the work of installation was ordered done before the brick paving to be laid on both streets is completed.

A letter from the company from which the street signs were ordered to Alderman Hall, explaining the delay in the shipment of the signs was read, after Alderman Connell has asked that the city clerk write the company regarding the delay in the shipment of the signs.

Alderman Huggs was granted permission to build a porch over the entrance to the side door of his property on Dodge street, an amendment to the order being passed that the Chief of the Fire Department and the Fire and Water committee not on the specifications required to insure fire protection in the fire limits of the city.

The report of Superintendent William Dull of the stone crusher plant was read and accepted. Alderman Buchholz suggested that the report be made more full and asked for more complete details. He asked Superintendent Dull if a report could not be made of each day's work, but the superintendent stated that this was impossible, as it was only possible to measure the stone sent out for delivery. The report showed 106,725 yards of crushed stone delivered in the past two weeks.

Stone Crusher Report.

The necessary stencil for marking electric wire posts, used for the alarm system, owned by the city. The fire chief was ordered to have the posts painted before the next meeting.

Reports of the municipal court, board of education police and city treasurer for the month of July, were accepted, and current bills were allowed. An invitation from the Janesville Park Association to attend the motorcycle races at the Fair Grounds on August 28 was accepted. Standard sidewalks were ordered built in the Third ward.

EXPECT BIG CROWDS
AT EDGERTON PICNIC

Six Extra Coaches To Be Used on Each of Four Trains Between This City and Edgerton Tomorrow.

Six extra coaches are set aside in the yards for use tomorrow to accommodate the crowds that are expected to go to the big annual picnic at Edgerton. By their past experience the officials realize that if the day is at all favorable there will be large numbers of people from this part of the country, who will go to this picnic, given by the Catholic Total Abstinence and Home-Society and they have doubts that even this number of extra coaches will be inadequate to accommodate all the visitors.

These coaches will start for Edgerton at 7:50 in the morning, return to this city at 10:25. The second trip will then be made on train number 310 that will leave here at about 10:50. The extra coaches will then be divided part of them being attached to train 361 and the remainder to 141, which arrive in Janesville at 5:07 and 8:10 respectively.

From here the six coaches will be taken to Madison on trains 370 and 390, to be used between that city and Edgerton in the fair train service on August 19 and 21.

ENGINE INSPECTED
UNDER NEW STATUTE

Engine 577 Is the "First" Inspected Under the New Federal Law in Any Outside Shop. Examination Complete Today.

Engine 577 that has been under the care of Engineers Tuttle and Mill on the daily run between this city and McGregor is now in the shop undergoing an examination and test in accordance with the provisions of the new boiler inspection law, which became effective July 1. This is the first engine that has been stripped outside of the central shops for such an examination.

As the engine now stands in the stall it shows clearly the extent of the work that has been done upon it in preparation for the test. When one realizes that the new law provides that such tests must be made more frequently than formerly it is easy to see that the work of the shop employees is greatly increased by the new statute.

The jacket and the asbestos covering that lies beneath it have been removed likewise the steam dome cover, the stand pipe and the throttle box. When these parts are taken off it enables the inspectors to examine both the exterior and the interior. This examination and inspection covers cross, throat and sliding stays, dome braces, back head braces and front head sheet braces and the report of such inspections must be sworn to before a notary public and forwarded to the office of the Interstate Commerce at Washington.

The work of stripping an engine conducting an inspection and replacing the parts consumed about two days, especially where the force of employees must be divided for conducting the regular work of the shops at the same time.

A careful inspection of engine 577 showed that everything about it was in first class condition. The preliminary plans necessary for conducting such examinations are now complete and the provisions of the new federal statute will be carried out in the future. Until the force becomes accustomed to the work brought about by this change it is to be expected that more or less inconvenience will be experienced, but no fears are entertained that the employees will be unable to live up to the requirements of the recent statute.

FIFTEEN ENGINES FITTED WITH ASH PAN SPRINKLERS

During the past two weeks fifteen engines have been equipped at the local shops with ash pan sprinkling pipes. These are placed on the engines for the purpose of turning water on the hot clinders as they draw from the pan and will serve not only for the protection of the pan by preventing it from being burned by the excessive heat but also lessens the danger of fire on the right of way and on bridges, which might be caused by hot clinders dripping from the pan.

This precaution is being taken all along the line in accordance with instructions received from the head office a short time ago.

MADE RECORD RUN
ON GRAVEL TRAIN

Engineer Davis Covers 49 Miles in 54 Minutes With Twenty-five Empty Cars, Then Apologizes for Going Slow.

"We have just one hour to get into the clear at Janesville; the road is clear so far as it goes to beat it," said Conductor Sweeney to Engineer Davis as they hopped aboard the empty gravel train at Clyman on Saturday night. In response to the conductor's highball Davis did "beat it" in a way that caused the rest of the train crew to fear that the whole outfit would find that the track was not wide enough to hold them.

From the moment that he got the signal to start from Clyman until he was speeding past the ten mile mark at Watertown only ten minutes had elapsed and the remainder of the trip was made at almost the same rate of speed. People along the line of the course watched with amazement as the outfit came tearing over the rails in the direction of Janesville and they were not the only ones who thought that the train would be found, piled up along side the track at some of the many curves that would have to be made. The conductor and brakemen saw that the engineer, who was just transferred from the Wisconsin division, had no fears, judging by the way he let his engine out. They thought that a new man would not dare to make such speed on a track over which he had made only one or two trips before.

As the train pulled into the yards here and the engineer and conductor met again the former said: "Well, we got here in time all right, but if the engine wasn't hot and a little stiff I would have done better." The conductor looked at his watch and noted that the distance of 49 miles had been covered in 54 minutes, and looking at the engineer he simply remarked: "What wouldn't you have done if it was lumber?"

This record made by a stranger to this division has caused much comment among the men in the local yards and the engineers among them begin to think that they are not the only ones who get speed out of their engines.

Conductor Anderson went to Chicago yesterday and witnessed the game between the Chicago team and the New Yorkers.

An extra stock train of twenty-six cars passed through the local yards yesterday enroute from Dakota to Chicago.

Switchman Lighthouse has taken a vacation of fifteen days and expects to spend it in the northern part of the state.

Switchman Church is off duty on account of sickness and his place is filled by Brakeman Goodman.

Switchman Smith is laying off and is relieved by Jerry Leahy.

Roundhouse Foreman Hoffman is in Chicago today in attendance at a foreman's meeting.

Joe Zastoupil, night stationary engineer, was off duty last night.

Fireman Townsend is off duty and Fireman Rothlow is taking his place on 288 and 295.

Engineer Kaufman and Fireman Matheson are on duty on the 6:00 p. m. dispatching job. They will have charge of the movement of engines between the roundhouse and the gravel pit north of town.

Engineers Starr and Cole have reported for duty and are now on the board.

FUN FESTIVAL FOR MUSICIANS AT PARK

Janesville, Beloit and Rockford Bands Will Hold Joint Picnic at Yost's Park, August 20.

On Sunday, August twentieth, the American Federation of Musicians' picnic association, comprising the musicians of Janesville, Beloit and Rockford, will hold a monster picnic at Yost's park, the third given under the auspices of the association. Two years ago, when the last picnic was held by the musicians, over ten thousand people were present and many ban accommodations were overtaxed. Fully as large a crowd is expected to attend this year and special arrangements are being made for carrying the picnicers.

Besides the bands in the three cities above named, invitations have been sent to bands in twenty-five nearby cities and a large number of them are expected to attend.

A number of interesting features have been planned for the day's celebration. There will be band concerts at the park all day, the bands changing off so that one will be playing all the time. The games and races will take place in the morning and some fine prizes have been offered for the various events. One of the most amusing features of the day will be the musicians' running and playing contest, the rules being that each contestant must play an instrument and keep time with his instrument.

Violand's 50th Birthday. Vineland, N. J., Aug. 8.—This was the big day of Vineland's semi-centennial celebration, the fiftieth anniversary of the day Charles K. Landis drove the first stake to mark the center of the town. An imposing parade through the gayly decorated streets was the chief feature of the day's program.

Apple Shippers at Detroit. Detroit, Mich., Aug. 8.—Many visitors from points throughout the United States and Canada arrived in Detroit today to attend the annual convention of the International Apple Shippers' Association. The sessions will begin tomorrow and continue three days.

will be at stake, should keep this in mind.

THE BUSINESS SITUATION.

Talks of hard times are rife the country through, yet they are evidently without foundation upon facts. The increasing bank clearings, fewer idle freight cars, greater activity in building operations, smaller percentage of decrease in railway earnings, fewer business failures, continued improvement in the iron and steel industry and an increasing demand abroad for our manufactures should afford much encouragement to the business community after a rather prolonged period of dulness. These developments are as barometric of the commercial activity of the country as any could be. It is true that cotton mills have been obliged to curtail production still further until the situation, so far as this industry is concerned, is serious enough, but it should be remembered that this is only one factor and a temporary one. Better times are ahead for the cotton industry, and the improvement is not to be long postponed.

The report of the department of agriculture issued this week on condition of the cotton crop was eminently satisfactory. With one exception it was the best August report on condition that has been published in the past decade, and was almost ten points better than the ten-year average. This, with a record-breaking acreage, means a total crop in this country of probably 14,500,000 bales, the largest ever harvested. It is only a question of time until the cotton mills will benefit greatly from this enormous cotton yield. Eventually it will be of much advantage to the consumer and to general business.

That business is slowly expanding there is no doubt. To what extent the improvement will go remains to be seen. It depends largely upon crop and political developments. Added wealth to the amount of probably nine billions from our farms this year will be of immeasurable benefit to industry and commerce. A steady improvement in all directions should take place. The presidential campaign next year may act as a check to any great development along industrial lines, as is usually the case in the years when a national election is held; but the volume is not likely to be smaller than it has been this year, and the probability is that it will be larger by reason of the increasing consumptive demand of a rapidly growing population.

The lack of confidence, however, is still quite apparent. What are known as the "big interests" refuse to enter upon any extensive financial undertakings. Present investigations and prosecutions are not alone responsible, but fears of a possible radical administration to follow the present one have been inspired by the growing activity of what is known as the "insurgent" element in legislative assemblies. Capital is timid, and often runs to cover on short notice whether there is good reason or not. But it is gratifying to know that wealth derived from the soil far outweighs in importance any political maneuvering as a permanent business influence.

HARD WORK.

It is hard work to pound the fact that Janesville is growing, is bound to grow, if only given half a chance. There are persons in the city who greatly resemble the mule "Napoleon" which is told of in the following manner in Norman E. Mack's National Magazine. It appears that a whole-sale feed house owned a bulky mule named Napoleon and employed an old negro named Abe to drive him.

One day when Napoleon balked and old Abe had spent his energies on him for an hour in the vain endeavor to get him to start, Abe went in to a store to telephone his employers.

"The following was Abe's end of the conversation:

"Horse, mule, gimble number two hundred and seven. Is dat you, Marse Henry? Yessir, dis is Abe. I dun ting yo' up, sir, for tell you about Napoleon."

"Napoleon, he dun balk down yor on broad street."

"Hout a hour, sir."

"Yessir, I bus him in de head."

"I dun wear do whip handle out on him, sir."

"Yessir, I dun klok him 'bout eighty times, sir."

"Marse Henry, I would ha' kick um some mo' but I ha' no big toe on um do las' time I kick um."

"Twis he tall? No, sir, no dis nigger. A gemman from New York, he twis he tall."

"No, sir, I don't think he dead. De doctor take him 'way in de ambulance."

"Yessir, it was sure foolish."

"Yessir, Marse Henry, I dun set fire under Napoleon."

"De harness? Dun bu'n de harness clean off um."

A wise proposition would be to obtain some sort of amusement for our netresses to take the place of the customary divorce actions. The old jewelry theft of the press agent is now down and out and divorcees are fast taking their places.

The council decided last evening to wait until some future meeting to take up the matter of the better lighting of the business section of the city. They want to hear from the gas company and learn their proposition. Perhaps it is a wise move after all.

Palmbats and seers in general are to have their inning if the present move of the council amounts to anything. This telling of the future is a get-rich-quick method of living, anyway.

Many a man who spent ten days' vacation at a fashionable resort will confess, if properly approached, that he spent most of the time buttoning up his wife's dress.

PRESS COMMENT.

Growth Is Natural.

Evening Wisconsin: From a theoretical standpoint the continual tendency to increase the membership of the House of Representatives is unfortunate, making that body unwieldy and necessitating limitations upon debate. In the nature of things a large House of Representatives cannot be an ideal deliberative assembly. On the other hand, there are practical reasons which always will influence congressmen and practical politicians in general in making reappointments. They never have failed and never will fail to pay some attention to the probable effect of different proposed reappointment plans upon themselves and upon their friends. It is very hard for a congressman to work a friend out of office by voting to lessen the number of congressional districts in his state. It is impossible for him to commit political suicide by voting for a place that might leave himself without a reliable district. Such is human nature!

Liberal Newspapers.

Monroe Times: The liberality of Wisconsin newspapers to the public is amply demonstrated by the report of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis society in the annual number of the Crusader, the official organ of the society, in which it is stated that during the year newspapers of the state gave space amounting to 30,000 lines to the cause of the society. At 10 cents and cents valuation, this means that something like $25,000 or $50,000 worth of space is being granted to the cause every year. It is absolutely certain that an equal amount of space could not be obtained by a private enterprise for less than double the amount.

Art and Happiness.

Chicago Examiner: "No home life—no married life." Such is the dictum of Mme. Louise Homer, who, with Mme. Schumann-Heink, is a living example of a happy woman, a happy wife and a happy mother, as well as a famous prima donna.

"Unhappiness," says Mme. Homer, "is quite unnecessary among artists if they will only use their common sense."

Never was truer word spoken, but common sense is uncommon among men and women of "temperament."

Wisconsin Democrats.

Waterbury Leader: Objection is being raised to holding the next Democratic national convention at Milwaukee for the reason that the democrats in Wisconsin have not been loyal to their party in recent years, and have added in the defeat of their state ticket at several and diverse times. Men claiming to be democrats, have followed after strange political gods and sold out their party for a mess of political potage. They do not deserve recognition from the party, even to a limited degree.

Commendable Campaign.

Beloit News: The campaign of the postoffice department against suggestive postcards is to be commended. It is a proper exercise of the authority of the department to stop such cards and to prosecute the senders. But somebody should go even further and prevent the sale of such cards by making a few examples of dealers who panders to the vulgar tastes of some persons. A few stiff fines or prison sentences would probably break up the practice.

Momentous Decision.

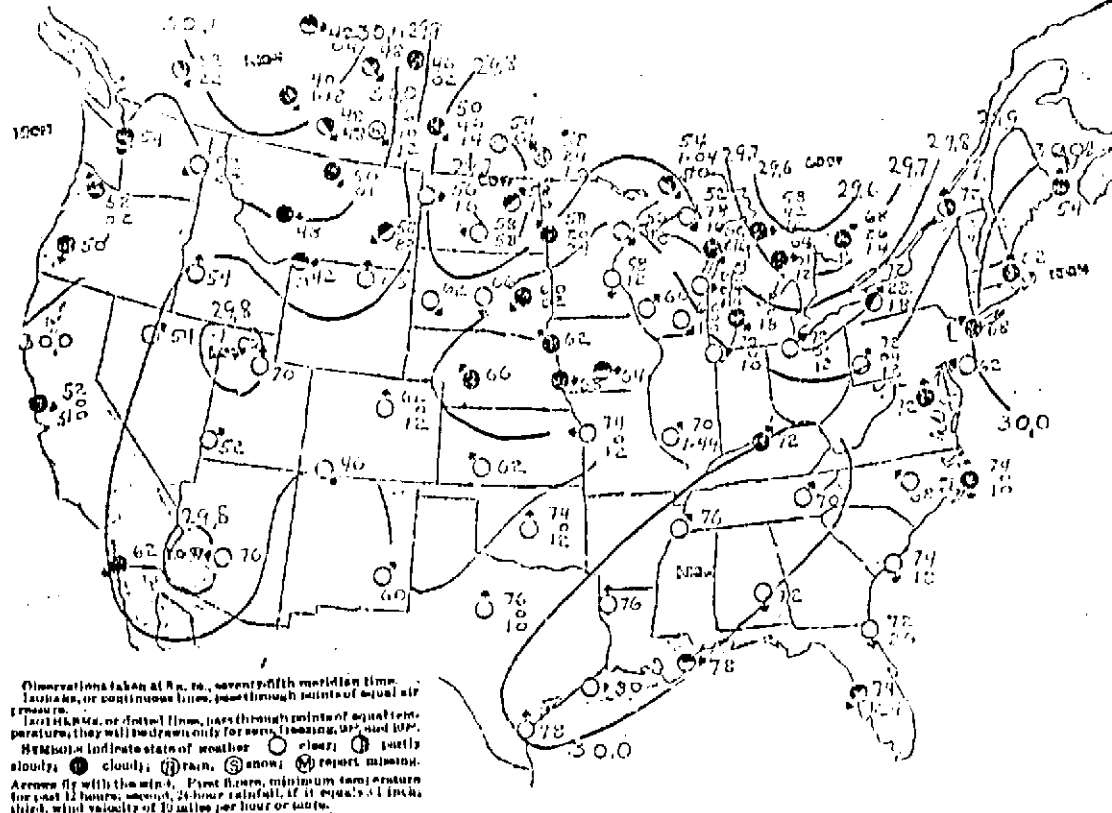

Chicago Examiner: When is fair law and when is it "drawn"? On the decision of this question hangs the higher end of the rate, puts, cuts and switches.

Assistant Secretary Curtis of the Treasury Department, surrounded by many locks of many nations, is trying hard to solve a puzzle that would have floored the Sphinx.

WEATHER BUREAU

WILLIS L. MOORE, Chief.

Observations taken at 8 a. m., seven-fifths meridian time. Isobars, or continuous lines, pass through points of equal air pressure. They will be drawn only for seven, five, and four. Wetness indicates state of weather. Rain, sun, clouds, snow, etc. are shown by symbols. Arrows show the wind. From Bureau, minimum temperature for past 24 hours, maximum, 24-hour rainfall, if it exceeds 1 inch, and wind velocity of 10 miles per hour or more.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

The atmospheric disturbance that was over the upper Mississippi valley yesterday has moved northward over the upper lakes and is now in southeastern Ontario. It was attended by thunderstorms and general rains in the lake region. A similar disturbance has formed over the Red River, Arthur, L.D.; St. Louis, L.H.; Tampa, valley, and is accompanied by rising temperature on the Plains and show.

The weather is generally fair in the east and thunderstorms in the north. South and Southwest. Fair, cool, locally mountainous. There have been weather prevails in this vicinity and rains in Florida and along the south will probably continue tonight, and Atlantic coast. The following heavy perhaps all day Wednesday, although rainfalls occurred during the past 24 hours, the disturbance in the northwest is hours: 12 inches, 1.10 inches; Port likely to be felt here by that time.

A Hard Matter.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Of course, however, it will be rather hard to convince the farmers of this section they will not be able to get more for their hay if they hold on until later in the season. And possibly their hope will be verified, although to hear the Jencers tell they are taking something of a chance.

I wonder why the chiggers infest this lovely land, and climb on my shapely figures, and bite to beat the band? In sunny hours of childhood we never heard their name; wonderment now, in the tangled wilderness, they play their dizzy game. They came no cruel rigors, and agony intense; no what's there any sense? I wonder why the rooster must always start to yell just when the human hostler is sleeping fairly well? Just when we're nicely dreamt, and night is nearly through, the rooster starts screaming his cockadoodledoo! And so we get up, yawning, and cursing that noisy cock; why can't he do his howling at half past 10 o'clock (10:30 A. M.)? I wonder why the weather can never hit the spot? It's too cold, altogether, or else too hotly hot. Why would we go aeroplaning, or camping in the woods, if it were to be anything some way and sloppy goods. And if we had some water to help the garden sows, the sun starts in to slaughter the buds and fruit and grass. There's nothing really suits me, and so I'll yelp my fill, until some fellow bount me and tells me to be still.

Oh, how they do love the farmers those whole souled philanthropists!

The lively business fairly boomed for they kept the roads hot. Circulars were mailed and even our lines were used urging our farmer subscribers to attend a public meeting at the Emerald Grove church on the evening of July 5. Even the Bell man at Delavan took part in urging attendance. The great (?) meeting came off as advertised and was attended by the two Bell men and nobody else. Now wasn't that a real rade way to treat a fellow who claims his only object in life is to do you good? It jars our belief in mankind in general to learn of such bare ingratitude.

Perhaps, however, those farmers had in mind the days when our competitor had a monopoly and the best rate it would give a farmer was $5.00 a month.

ANNOUNCEMENT MADE

Committee Has Stated That Owing to Continued Drouth, Its Effects on Lawns Will be Taken into Consideration.

Thirty business firms and retail stores of Janesville have contributed toward the prize list for the Twilight Club's home beautifying and improvement contest for school children. The amount which will be given for the entire number of prizes thirty-five in all, seven in each ward, totals $112.50.

Some of the firms found it convenient to give cash which is an aid in the cash prize money, which constitutes the first two prizes in each ward. The other firms gave or allowed the selection of merchandise articles from their stock of goods to complete the total of the other five prizes.

Stores Contributing.
The following firms contributed toward the cash prizes: Twilight Club, Gas Company, Water Company, Electric Light Company, First National, Rock County, Power City and Merchants and Savings Banks, Hager Telephone and Telegraph Company, H. L. McManis, and the Janesville Flour Company.

The following companies contributed merchandise articles: Hall & Sayles, J. M. Hostwick & Sons, Olin & Olson, Harry George, Pupina Confectionery store, P. J. Bailey & Son, Parker-Pon Company, Chas. Putnam, Paul & Bailey, Golden Eagle, W. T. Shoror, Frank D. Kimball, Ziegler Clothing Company, Reliable Drug Company, McCue & Hoss, Allie Razook, Smith's Pharmacy, People's Drug Company, and J. P. Prize lists have been previously published and remain the same. They are as follows for each ward of the city: First, $7 cash; second, $5 cash; third, $3 article; fourth, $3 article; fifth, $2 article; sixth, $1 article; seventh, 50c article.

Drouth into Consideration.
On account of the dry weather this summer, the committee in charge of the contest, composed of Rev. J. C. Hazen, chairman, George R. Parker, and Fred Canfield, desire to announce to the contestants that the drouth will be taken into consideration in awarding the prizes. Lawns have been badly affected by the dry spell and in many cases it was not possible to water them. Consequently it is planned to take this difficulty into account and decide on the merits of the improvements.

There were over 450 school children entered in the contest and their homes were inspected by the committee the latter part of June. The first week in September the committee will make its final tour of inspection, noting any and all improvements in the appearance of the lawns and surroundings of the home.

From comparison of the data secured at these two inspections they will be able to decide on the prize awards, which will be announced in the various grades at an early date.

Editor After Devil's Job.
William Sothern, Jr., told about the Missourian who went to the lower regions and had no sooner arrived than he took general charge and was ordering the little devils around when the real devil appeared. "You act like you own this place," he said to the Missourian. "I do," said the Missourian. "Where did you get it?" "My wife gave it to me before I left home."

Eaters of Earth.

HANDS WOULD BURN LIKE FIRE

Could Lay Pin in Cracks. Four Long Years of Eczema. Only Relief in Scratching. Used One Set of Cuticura Remedies. Hands Entirely Well.

"I can truthfully say Cuticura Remedies have cured me of four long years of eczema. About four years ago I noticed some little pimples coming on my little fingers, and not giving it any attention, it soon became worse and spread all over my hands. If I would have them in water for a long time, they would burn like fire and large cracks would come. I could lay a pin in them. After using one of the salves I could think of, I went to three different doctors, but all did me no good. The only relief I got was scratching.

"So after hearing so much about the wonderful Cuticura Remedies, I purchased one complete set, and after using them three days my hands were much better. To-day my hands are entirely well, one set being all I used." (Signed) Miss Edna Norber, R. F. D. 2, Spring Lake, Mich., Sept. 20, 1910.

No stronger evidence than this could be given of the address and economy of the Cuticura Remedies in the treatment of torturing, disgusting humors of the skin. A single bath with Cuticura Soap and a gentle anointing with Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient to afford immediate relief in the most distressing cases and permit rest and sleep when all else fails. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are equally effective in preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and nails.

Although Cuticura Soap (5c.) and Cuticura Ointment (5c.) are sold throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp, will be mailed on application to the Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 2B, Boston, Mass.

NOTES FOR CITY FARMERS ONLY.

(By H. L. RANN.)

Farmer's Weekly has an interesting column devoted to the home, in which many helpful and practical topics are discussed. One of these is:

"Shall the Married Girl Be Allowed to Spoon in the Front Parlor?" The vivacity with which the men readers of the Weekly vote in the affirmative shows that the age of chivalry is not dead. One woman wrote that she always believed in the practice until she came home from a prayer meeting one evening and found that her husband was the spooner, which was such a shock to her nervous system that she fell on the girl's neck and clawed her countenance until it looked like a crushed fruit salad. Another correspondent said she knew one of her callers ran both feet through the motto of "Shall We Gather at the River," while entertaining a lively lot, which also discouraged her that she required the girl to hang over the front gate until she resembled a shrieking kumby sack. Such discussions as this are wholesome and piquant, stimulating new interest in the home and adding romance to its sacred precincts.

The mother who allows a 16-year-old daughter to float around the township in a top buggy until 2:00 p. m. with a counterfeited weak jaw and weaker morals merely opens the front door to grief and disgrace. If you don't know what company your girl keeps or what time of night she turns in, your rear when the gaspings get busy will sound about as pathetic as the wheeze from a Jew's harp. The girl who insists on spooning with everybody in the corporate limits ought to be packed into the washboard and relieved of her overflow of affection with a No. 1 slipper laid carefully across the hipplate. We had sooner see a girl kiss a blind goat through a barbed wire fence than have her change partners six nights a week in the front parlor with the lights turned low. You can't gold-brick a sharp-eyed suitor with second hand goods. There are lots of parents who are going up against the Judgment day with about as much show as a hair-tipped girl in a beauty show, and their children will rise up and call them blessed with the enthusiasm of a one-legged man at a club dance.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—It seems strange the fish could resist Father's outfit.

The Taming of Red Butte Western

By FRANCIS LYNDY

Copyright, 1911, by Charles North-West's Sons.

"I can't help feeling indirectly responsible for this, Mr. Lidgerwood," he began, with something like a return of his habitual self-possession. "If I hadn't asked you to come over here tonight—"

Lidgerwood interrupted sharply. "What possible difference would that have made, Mr. Fleming?"

It was not a special weakness of Fleming to say the damaging thing under pressure of the untoward and unanticipated event; it is rather a common failing of human nature. In a flash he appeared to realize that he had admitted too much.

"Why, I understood that it was unexpected sight of your special, standing on the night that made the passenger engineer lose his head," he countered lamely, evidently striving to recover himself and to efface the damaging admission.

It chanced that they were standing directly opposite the break in the track where the rail ends were still held apart by the small stone. Lidgerwood pointed to the loosened rail, plainly visible under the volleying play of the two opposing headlights.

"There is the cause of the disaster, Mr. Fleming," he said hotly, "a trap set, not for the passenger train, but for my special. Somebody set it, somebody who knew almost to a minute when you should reach it. Mr. Fleming, let me tell you something—I don't care any more for my own life than a sane man ought to care, but the murdering devil who pulled the spikes on that rail reached out, unconsciously perhaps, but none the less certainly, after a life that I would safeguard at the price of my own. Because he did that I'll spend the last dollar of the fortune my father left me, if needful, in finding that man and hanging him!"

It was the needed flick of the whip for the slunken nerve of the mine owner.

"Ah," said he, "I am sure every one will applaud that determination. Mr. Lidgerwood—applaud it and help you to see it through." And then, quite as calmly: "I suppose you will go back from here with your special, won't you? You can't get down to Little Butte until the track is repaired and the wreck cleared. Your going back will make no difference in the right of way matter. I can arrange for a meeting with Grofield at any time—in Angela if you prefer."

"Yes," said Lidgerwood absently, "I am going back from here."

"Then I guess I may as well ride down to my jumping-off place with my men. You don't need us any longer. Make my adieux to Miss Brewster and the young ladies, will you, please?"

Lidgerwood stood at the break in the track for some minutes after the retreating train had disappeared around the steep shoulder of the great hill—was still standing there when Bradford, having once more sidetracked the service car on the abandoned mine spur, came down to ask for orders.

"We'll hold the siding until Dawson shows up with the wrecking train," was the superintendent's reply. "He ought to be here before long. Where are Miss Brewster and her friends?"

"They are all up at the house, I'm having the Jap hauler the car a little before they move in."

There was another interval of delay, and Lidgerwood held aloof from the group at the fire, pacing a slow sentry beat up and down beside the dithered train and pausing at either turn to listen for the signal of Dawson's coming. It sounded at length—a series of shrill whistle shrieks, distance softened, and presently the drumming of leading wheels.

The draftsman was on the engine of the wrecking train, and he dropped off to join the superintendent.

"Not so bad for my part of it this time," was his comment when he had looked the wreck over. Then he asked the inevitable question, "What did it?"

Lidgerwood beckoned him down the line and showed him the sprung rail. Dawson examined it carefully before he rose up to say: "Why didn't they spring it the other way if they wanted to make a thorough job of it? That would have put the train into the river."

Lidgerwood's reply was as laconic as the query. "Because the trap was set for my car going west, not for the passenger going east."

"Of course," said the draftsman as one properly disgusted with his own lack of perspicacity. Then, after another and more searching scrutiny, in which the headlight glare of his own engine was helped out by the burning of half a dozen matches, "Whoever did that knew his business."

"How do you know?"

"Little things. A regular spike puller claw bar was used. The marks of its heel are still in the ties. The place was chosen to the exact rail length—just where your engine would begin to hug the outside of the curve. Then the rail is sprung aside barely enough to let the wheel flanges through and not enough to attract an engineer's attention unless he happened to be looking directly at it and in a good light."

"The superintendent nodded. "What is your inference?" he asked.

"Only what I say—that the man knew his business. He is no ordinary hobo. He is in your class or mine."

"Fred, tell me—you've known John Dawson longer than I have—do you trust him when he's sober?"

"Yes," the answer was unqualified. "I think I do, but he talks too much. He is over here somewhere tonight shadowing the man who may have done this. He and the man—came down on 205 this evening. I saw them both board the train at Angela as it was pulling out."

Dawson looked up quickly, and for once the reticence which was his customary shield was dropped.

"You're trusting me now, Mr. Lidgerwood. Who was the man—Gridley?"

"Gridley? No. Why, Dawson, he is the last man I should suspect."

"All right, if you think so."

"Don't you think so?"

It was the draftsman's turn to hesitate.

"I'm prejudiced," he confessed at length. "I know Gridley. He is a worse man than a good many people think he is—and not so bad as some others believe him to be. If he thought you or Benson was getting in his way—up at the house, you know."

Lidgerwood smiled.

"You don't want him for a brother-in-law, is that it, Fred?"

"I'd cheerfully help to put my sister in her coffin if that were the alternative," said Dawson quite calmly.

"Well," said the superintendent, "he can easily prove an ally so far as this wreck is concerned. He went east on 202 yesterday. You know that, didn't you?"

"Yes, I know it, but—"

"But what?"

"It doesn't count," said the draftsman briefly, then, "Who was the other man—the man who came west on 205?"

"It was Hallock,"

"I HATE to say it, Fred, but it was Hallock," he said, with the wreck, all of us, from the back platform of my car. Williams had just pulled us out on the old spur. Just before Cranford shut off and jammed on his air brakes a man ran down the track swinging his arms like a madman. Of course there wasn't the time or any chance for me to identify him, and I saw him only for the second or two intervening and with his back toward us. But the back looked like Hallock's. I'm afraid it was Hallock's."

"But why should he weaken at the last moment and try to stop the train?" queried Dawson.

"You forget that it was the special and not the passenger that was to be wrecked."

"Sure," said the draftsman. "I've told you this, Fred, because if the man we saw were Hallock he'll probably turn up while you are at work—Hallock, with Judson at his heels. You'll know what to do in that event."

"I guess so. Keep a sharp eye on Hallock and make Judson hold his tongue. I'll do both."

Lidgerwood excused himself and went quickly to the embarrassed one, who was still anchoring himself to the doorknob. "What is it, Fred?" he asked.

"Judson; he has just turned up, walking from Little Butte, he says, with a pretty badly bruised ankle. He is loaded to the muzzle with news of some sort, and he wants to know if you'll take him with you to An."

"The draftsman, facing the group under the Pintch globe at the other end of the open compartment, stopped suddenly, and his big jaw grew rigid.

Then he said, in an awed whisper, "God, let me get out of here!"

"Tell Judson to come aboard," said Lidgerwood, and the draftsman was twisting at the doorknob when Miriam Holcombe came swiftly down the compartment.

"Wait, Fred," she said gently. "I have come all the way out here to ask my question, and you mustn't try to stop me. Are you going to keep on letting it make us both desolate—for always?" She seemed not to see or care that Lidgerwood made a hissing third.

Dawson's face had grown suddenly haggard, and he, too, ignored the superintendent.

"How can you say that to me, Miriam?" he returned, almost gruffly. "Day and night I am paying, paying, and the debt never grows less. If it wasn't for my mother and Faith—but I must go on paying. I killed your brother."

"No," she denied. "That was an accident for which you were no more to blame than he was, but you are killing me."

Lidgerwood stood by, motionless, because he did not know enough to vanish. But Miss Brewster suddenly swept down the compartment to drag him out of the way of those who did not need him.

"You'd spoil it all if you could, wouldn't you?" she whispered in a low, furious rage. "And after I've moved heaven and earth to get Miriam to come out here for this one special blessed moment! Go and drive the others into a corner and keep them there."

Lidgerwood obeyed quite meekly, and when he looked again Dawson had gone and Miss Holcombe was sobbing comfortably in Eleanor's arms.

Judson boarded the service car when it was pulled up to the switch, and after Lidgerwood had disposed of his passengers for the run back to Angela he listened to the ex-engineer's report, sitting quietly while Judson told him of the plot and of the plotters. At the close he said gravely, "You are sure it was Hallock who got off the night train at Silver Switch and went up the old spur?"

It was a test question, and the engineer did not answer it offhand.

"I'd say yes in a holy minute if there wasn't so blamed much else tied on to it," Mr. Lidgerwood said.

"Yet you are convinced in your own mind?"

"I am."

"That the third man, Judson, the man you saw leaving his desk on the bull-headed air lock—who was he?" persisted Lidgerwood.

"Now you've got me guessing again. I? I hadn't been dead certain that I saw Hallock go on ahead with Fleming."

"No," reading the question in the superintendent's eye, "not a drop, Mr. Lidgerwood; I didn't touch it, tasted not n't handled not—r leastwise, not to drink any," and here he told the bottle episode which had ended in the smashing of Fleming's sideboard supply.

Lidgerwood nodded approvingly when the modest narrative reached the bottle-smashing point.

"That was fine, John," he said, using the ex-engineer's Christian name for the first time in the long interview. "If you've got it in you to do such a thing as that at such a time there is good hope for you. Let's settle this question once for all. All I ask is that you prove up on your good intentions. Show me that you have quit, not for a day or a week, but for all time, and I shall be only too glad to see you pulling passenger trains again. But, to get back to this crime of tonight, when you left Fleming's office, after telephoning Goodloe, you walked down to Little Butte station?"

"Yes; walked and ran. There was nobody there but the bridge watchman. Goodloe had come on up the track to meet me and what happened?"

"And you didn't see Fleming or Hallock again?"

"Fleming told us he got the news by phone, and when he said it the wreck was no more than an hour old. He couldn't have walked down from the mine in that time. Where could he have got the message and from whom?"

Judson was shaking his head. "He didn't need any message, and he didn't get any. I'd put it up this way—after that rail joint was sprung open they'd go back up the old spur on the handcar, wouldn't they? And on the way they'd be pretty sure to hear Cranford when he whistled for Little Butte. That'd let 'em know what was due to happen right then and there. After that it'd be easy enough. All Fleming had to do was to rout out his miners over his own telephones, jump on to the handcar again and come back in time to show up to you."

Lidgerwood was frowning thoughtfully.

"Then both of them must have come back, or—no; that must have been your third man who tried to flag Cranford down. Judson, I've got to know who that third man is. He has complicated things so that I don't dare move even against Fleming until I know more. We are not at the ultimate bottom of this thing yet."

"We're far enough to put the handcuffs on to Mr. Pennington Fleming any time you say," asserted Judson.

"There was one little thing that I forgot to put in the report. When you got ready to take that missing switch engine back you'll find it choo-chooing away up yonder in Fleming's new power house that he's built out of boards made from Mr. Benson's bridge timbers."

"Is that so? Did you see the engine?" queried the superintendent quickly.

"No, but I might as well have. She's there, all right, and they didn't care enough to even muffle her exhaust."

"We'll get Mr. Pennington Fleming, and before he is very many hours older," he said definitely.

"I've heard there was bad blood between him and Hallock. It was about that building and loan business, wasn't it?"

"Shucks, no! That was only a drop in the bucket," said Judson, surprised out of his attitude of rank and file deference. "Hallock was the original owner of the Wire Silver. Didn't you know that?"

"No."

"He was, and Fleming beat him out of it, lock, stock and barrel—just simply reached out and took it. Then when he had done that he reached out and took Hallock's wife—just to make it a clean sweep was the way he bragged about it."

Arrest of a Vagrant.
Officer Parker arrested a drunken vagrant yesterday, at the depot who gave him a lively tussle before yielding. The fellow had been previously arrested in the fourth ward, but escaped while the officer was looking for the county superintendent of the poor. While Parker was hunting him up to make the second arrest, he succeeded in begging money enough to buy a sufficient amount of whiskey to make him uncontrollable. The officer found him at the depot and after a severe struggle succeeded in getting him into a wagon and thus conveying him to the jail. The prisoner was transferred to the county poor house today.

Fruit trees are planned by the roadside in parts of Germany, but not, as might be supposed, for the appeasement of appetites of passers-by. The trees are watched closely, and at the end of the season the fruit is sold. The amount stolen is very small. There Is Always Value in Good Agricultural Land
The greater the demand the greater the value. Increase in population means increase in demand. A wise man, therefore, at the present time, is he who puts every spare dollar into good farming land before prices get any higher.
Farm lands are more than ever in demand, and the demand will always be increasing and the value enhancing.
Land is a safe, sure, profitable investment.
No one can get a corner on the earth. Have your money drawing only a small rate of interest? Why not invest it in land at present prices. It is absolutely safe and most profitable of all investments.
There is no better place to invest now, than the Round Lake Country in Sawyer County, Wisconsin.
The land of MILK AND HONEY, where they never have a crop failure, where the rainfall is sufficient, where they have good markets, railroad facilities, schools, churches and everything which goes to make up an ideal home. See me today about our offer. It will place you under no obligation to buy. Our prices from $5.00 to $20.00 per acre and TEN years to pay.
